How we wash our clothes and how we purchase and dispose of our clothes all impact the environment.

There are a few things we can all do to have a positive impact on the planet, to avoid waste, conserve resources and fight climate change.

Washing Synthetic material sheds microplastics in the washing machine, which find their way to the ocean. The toxic fibre's degrade ecosystems and are ingested by sea life

Washing your clothes too often, and at high temperatures will also affect their quality over time. It's also waste of water and energy from your washing machine. Also, be sure to only buy non-bio detergents and limit the use of tumble dryers when possible.

Don't send your clothes to Landfill The UK produces around 1 million tonnes of textile waste per year which can take hundreds of years to decompose Don't put your old clothes in the bin, make alterations or repairs, or take them to a charity shop when you no longer want them.

Buy the best quality clothing you can as they last longer and will reduce waste, and research sustainable brands.
